

Mission

Provide financial education, information and counseling that equips service members to address their current personal financial situations, maximize their financial resources and effectively handle any financial challenges that may arise throughout their military life-cycle.

Vision

The Air Force is committed to fostering a culture that values financial literacy and competency resulting in service members and their families exhibiting responsible and effective financial readiness behaviors that improve their overall quality of life. PFR services assist customers in maximizing income, controlling expenses, using credit wisely, and saving/investing to ensure future goals are attainable.

Why should you care about Personal Financial Readiness?

Managing financial resources can be a daunting task for many service members, especially vulnerable populations like young service members, deployers, and those transitioning from the military. M&FRCs offers PFR services that increase the financial literacy and money management behaviors of all customers.
